Lenten Pastoral Answers

Question: I am a contractor who did some work for some cousins. They cheated me out of a significant amount of money. Strangely, I still get invited to family functions by them as if nothing happened. But I don't want anything to do with them. Does forgiveness require me to accept invitations and be friendly?

Answer: Forgiveness involves letting go of the need to change the past. Through forgiveness, we are able to let go of our resentments, our desire for revenge, and wrathful anger that often accompanies hurts or injustices we experience. In most cases, forgiveness does permit us to resume or stay in relationships with people. In many situations, the hurts are slight, and the issues are more of the moment rather than involving ongoing and very unhealthy aspects of our relationships with others.

But there are times when it is simply not wise to continue in relationships where there is ongoing sin, injustice or harm. A woman may forgive her husband for the repeated physical abuse he has inflicted on her in the past. She may understand that his anger comes from the fact that he himself was abused as a child. She may, by the grace of forgiveness, harbor no anger or resentment. But it does not follow that forgiveness means she should resume a common household with him. This might further endanger her and her children. It might also deepen the father's pathology and delay him getting the help he needs.

In your case, there may be reasons for you to stay clear of the family members who cheated you. You would not be rude or wrathful to them, but it does not mean you are required to be jovial and pretend that nothing happened. On the other hand, what is to prevent a forthright conversation between you all about what happened? Too often, enough effort is not made to find greater understanding.

I cannot say what is best for you. I can only communicate the principles that forgiveness does often mean that the parties involved share this gift in order to further and deepen the relationship. But as stated, there are exceptions to this and forgiveness does not always require resuming unhealthy situations that really benefit neither party.

Hometown Gratitude Responses from boxes shipped in February from Resurrection.

Army Staff Kisha Henshaw. She is deployed in the Middle East. She wrote,

"Thank you so very much! Means the world to me! I read each and every letter. Truly makes me feel so good. Thank you so much for everything."

Kisha with her family

"I am a Marine from Rochester currently serving in Afghanistan. I recently received letters from some of your students via packages organized by Operation Hometown Gratitude and wanted to thank them for their thoughtfulness. I've attached a picture of my team out here. Also, PBS did a piece on my team you might share as age appropriate (violence depicted). I'm the really blond guy in the operations center during the initial few minutes of the clip:

Ian reports that he attends Mass every Tuesday, the priest is flown in on a Blackhawk helicopter; his passion is protecting the environment, so in high school, he founded the "Minnesota Student Energy Project" that raised funds to put solar panels on all four Rochester high schools; he loves to read, currently he is reading a collection of poems by Billy Collins titled "Sailing Alone Around the Room."

Musings from Joy

Music and Choral Director &
Coordinator of Liturgy
choirdirector@rescathroch.org.

This week we will explore the final part of our NPM article, “Come and See...and Hear...and Sing.” Remember from last week, it considered the “invitation” to participation:

“When we think about inviting young people through our own witness and encouraging them to be witnesses themselves, and when they think about doing that for us, we need to remember that the Father’s house has many dwelling places (John 14:2) and that there are many paths on which people are guided by the one Spirit. There is a rich treasury of music that we can use at worship. In our diversity, not everything will appeal to everyone, just as not every form of private prayer or every form of spirituality will appeal to every believer. We can’t offer everything for everyone; after all, music is a servant of the liturgy, not something added onto the liturgical act or stuck in to provide entertainment. But what we can do is this: Realize how foundational music ministry is in expressing and proclaiming the faith and then treat our ministry accordingly. What we do, after all, is proclaim the Word of God and the mystery of faith in song; we should do that as well as we can, using the best resources available, being the best witnesses we can be, so that everyone can hear the invitation we sing: “Come and see.””<sup>1</sup>

I cannot express how much this summary does in terms of putting music ministry into focus for all to understand. Indeed, music at Mass will never be universally liked. “We can’t offer everything for everyone.” However, we can do the best we can with the resources we have and with the ministers we are blessed to work with. What are your thoughts on this?

With the changes coming to the Mass times this summer, I have been praying long and hard about the direction the Music Ministry is heading in for the future. Although I won’t give away too much yet, I sincerely hope that our offerings next school year for Music Ministry participation will appeal to many of you. My hope is that anyone who wants to participate in Music Ministry in ANY capacity will be compelled and able to do so, no matter which Mass one attends over the weekend.

A blessed Palm Sunday to you!

News from Sheila, Birth-KG, Children's Ministry, RCIA, dresscm@rescathroch.org or 288-5528 x 101
 Today in Sunday School the children listened to the story of Jesus riding into Jerusalem on a donkey. The people shouted Hosanna, Hosanna! blessed is the one sent by the Lord! Jesus was welcomed as a king, but he came as a king of peace and not to bring war. Let us pray. Lord Jesus, Prince of Peace, we pray that your peace will spread throughout our world today and touch the lives of everyone. Mother Mary, Our Lady, pray for us! Amen.
Fusion: Join us, April 26th at 6:00 pm as we present the feature film: Gnome and Juliet. Fresh popped popcorn and juice provided. Wear your most comfy clothes and bring blankets and pillows as we celebrate our faith community with a family movie night! All families are welcome.

Grades 1-5: This weekend we follow in the footsteps of Jesus as he enters Jerusalem. The people are joyous and celebrate by waving palms. This special last Sunday of Lent is called Palm Sunday. The palms have been blessed and are holy. Keep them someplace special this year until next Lent.

Totus Tuus at Resurrection: For children entering 1st-6th grades this summer, Totus Tuus will be the week of July 8-12, 9:00am-2:30pm Monday-Friday. Registration forms are in the Gathering Space, by the drinking fountain, and on our website.

First Communion: We will have practice on Monday, April 15th at 6:30pm in the Church for the children who will be receiving their First Communion. One parent or adult needs to attend the practice with their child. If you have not handed in your workbook or small photo, please bring them with you to the practice.

Virtues in Practice: Our April virtue is obedience and we look to the Blessed Virgin Mary as a perfect model of obedience. Dear Blessed Mother, you always said "yes" to God, even when it was very hard. Please help me to also say "yes" to God like you did. Mother Mary, help me to say "yes" to God in each and every moment. Help me to have a listening heart that is obedient to all God asks of me. Mary, Handmaid of the Lord, pray for us. Amen.

Stacey Shares: Praying in Color Learning Centers

The faith formation children in grades 1-5 and their families participated in learning centers where they learned a new way to pray to God. You can always pray, even when you don't have the words. Draw a shape and place God in the center of your prayers. Then doodle and draw what you are thinking. Turn on some beautiful music and color. God hears your prayers.

Check out the Gratitude Quilt of prayers on the bulletin board on your way to Fr. Zenk Hall.
