Weekly Words from The Rock

My Catholic Life has a series of questions and answers on the Catholic Faith. It can be found at the site "Catholic Questions and Answers: Questions and Answers from My Catholic Life!" I am going to share with you some of their questions and answers in the weeks ahead.

Question: I go to confession at least once a month. Most of my friends don't go as often, and some don't seem to go at all. A couple of my friends tell me I'm being OCD about it and I should get some help. I'm not sure how to tell them that they're the ones who need the help.

Answer: Generally speaking, I think going to confession once a month is a great idea! It's a very good way to stay close to God and keep His grace alive in your life! The Sacrament of Reconciliation is a wonderful gift from God because it's His way of cleansing us of our sin and weakness. In His great love for us we are immersed in His Divine Mercy every time we celebrate that sacrament. So keep it up and don't let your friends tell you differently.

As for trying to tell them that "they're the ones who need the help," let me suggest you do it in a very subtle and positive way. The best way to tell them this is by your good example. Share with them the blessings you see in your life by using this sacrament on a regular basis. Let your faith in God's grace shine forth for them to see. Often, when our friends see good things happening in our lives, they will want to imitate what we are doing. So the more you can share the good fruits in your life with them, the better.

Since you mention OCD (Obsessive Compulsive Disorder), let me also offer a comment on this struggle that some people deal with. I offer it as a general comment that some need to hear rather than presuming that this is your struggle. But it's worth mentioning since some people do struggle with this.

OCD is a very heavy cross. In the spiritual life it comes out in the form of scrupulosity. In this case the person becomes so focused on his/her sin that it seems everything is a mortal sin, and they can feel a need to go to confession all the time. In fact, some can feel as though they need to remember every last sin and offer every detail of their sins. And then after confession, they may worry that they did not confess everything and feel a need to return to the confessional right away. This is a real burden.

What I have found to be helpful in this situation is for the person struggling with this to go to confession to the same priest each time rather than several different priests. This way the one priest, who is aware of the tendency to scrupulosity, can help that person to stay balanced in their confession. Over time they can start to be freed of their scrupulosity and begin experiencing the freedom that God wants for them. Our God is a God of abundant mercy, and He wants us to know and experience that mercy.

Hope that helps clarify things. Keep up the good effort of practicing this wonderful sacrament!

Question: I have some friends who like to look at pornography on the Internet. My parents have always said that kind of stuff degrades women. When they start looking at the pictures, I just don't look, but I haven't ever said anything. I don't really want to lose them as friends, and I don't want people to think I'm weird. What can I do?

Answer: My dear friend... this is, unfortunately, a topic that affects more people than most of us want to admit. Let me offer a few thoughts.

First of all I think your parents response is absolutely correct! And I'd add that it also degrades men. This is a good conviction to keep in the forefront of your mind any time this discussion or temptation comes up.

Why is it degrading? As one very good chastity speaker I heard recently said, "The problem with pornography is not that it shows too much, rather, it shows too little!" I think this is a very good statement. What I believe he means is that pornography only shows the body of another and does so in a way that the person is turned into a selfish object of another's disordered pleasure. We call this "objectification." Therefore, it "shows too little" in the sense that pornography fails to show the true beauty and dignity of the person being exposed. It fails to reveal that this person is in fact a person... a son or daughter of God made in God's image and likeness. (continued on the next page).

It also does much damage to the person looking at the images, because it has the effect of drawing that person into a disordered sexual desire. This means that the person's sexual desires will most likely become disordered and out of control by the use of pornography. This creates a sort of "imprisonment" and unhealthy attachment. As a result, the person caught in the world of pornography will have a hard time looking at others with dignity, respect and true love. It truly has the potential to affect one's relationships in a very negative and selfish way. So, yes, it is degrading all the way around.

Regarding your friends who are looking at pornography and trying to expose you to it, you say that you "don't really want to lose them as friends" and that you "don't want people to think [you are] weird." I have a couple of thoughts on this. First, it's not "weird" in any sense of the word to respect the dignity of another person and to see them the way God sees them. God would never want you to look at another person the way they are portrayed in pornographic images. So, believe me, you are far from weird for not wanting to get drawn into this practice.

And as for losing them as friends, I think it's important to understand what a friend is and is not. A true friend would not push you into this practice. A true friend would see that this is unhealthy and would respect this desire in you. So, if they do not want to spend time with you or make fun of you or even call you "weird" for not being interested in this, then I can assure you these are not your friends. I know the pressure can be strong to, in a sense, "fit in" with the crowd. But it's not worth it. You are much better off standing your ground and experiencing their rejection than you are going with the flow of this disordered behavior. Recent brain science studies reveal that pornography can be as addicting as some of the most addicting drugs, and there are many who are so addicted that they simply cannot find a way to break their habits. This addiction, for many, can go on for years and cause much distress, guilt, shame and sexual confusion. And the end result is that an addiction to pornography can (and I dare say "will") affect your healthy ability to love others in the way God wants you to.

So, stay strong and keep talking to your parents about this. That open communication with them will help you for years to come!

God's blessings! Father Peter Schuster

Parish Events

Food for Friends Ministry - Connecting people in need with those who can help.

Even though schools have been shut down, the Food for Friends Ministry is still active. There are about 120 students receiving food. Many families stop by for food, and food is also being delivered to families on a weekly basis. The donations received for the Franklin food pantry is very much appreciated.

Operation One More, a ministry within Food for Friends, distributed bags of food, a turkey, milk, and bread to 60 families mid December.

Once a year we have a project collection of a specific item for our friends. In January, we are doing a "sock drive." All sizes for kindergarten through 5th grade, boys and girls, are needed. There will be a black tub placed on the south side of the office for the socks.

Distribution will be in January and February as Jennine makes contact with the children. January's food collection will be soup and crackers. Snacks are also greatly appreciated. For other ideas, there is a listing of items that you may pick up on the table south of the office. Ben Franklin feels very blessed that our parish works with them to meet their needs. We have helped more students than those signed up to receive food items each week. Franklin has about 70% of their students on free and reduced lunches. We have a wonderful parish who comes through to support this ministry. Thank you.

Perpetual Eucharistic Adoration Chapel 24 hours/7 days a week

"Sitting before Jesus in the Blessed Sacrament, a new life begins. Another birth takes place; eternal life within us. We do not see Jesus with our eyes, but rather in the transformation of our lives, where Jesus loves to be and desires that we experience love."

Faith Formation

News from Stacey, Grades 1-5, Family Ministry, dre1to5fm@rescathroch.org or 288-5528 x108

Grades 1-5: We will not have Faith Formation classes on Mondays until the public schools open in January. Each child has a Take Home Faith Formation bag to pick up at the Faith Formation table in the Gathering Space.

First Communion Parent Meeting: Our meeting is on Monday, January 18th at 6:30pm. Only one parent needs to attend this parent-only meeting. At the meeting, we will hand out and cover all the information related to your child's First Communion.

Teaching Kids to Respect Others: This week our focus chapter is called "We Care Enough to Speak Out and Stand Up." Silence allows bullying to persist. Young people need to know when to keep a secret and when to tell an adult. They need strategies for finding the courage to speak out. One way to practice this is to role play about situations when children need to tell a trusted adult and when not to tell another. Read the story of Jacob and his brothers (Genesis 37) and talk about what courage it took for Reuben to stand up and speak out. What effect did this have on everyone? Does one person's voice matter? How can we find courage to speak out when the whole crowd is saying something different? Another way to practice standing up for others is talking about how Jesus sent his followers out in pairs (Luke 10:1). Why do you think two is better than one?

We can pray with scripture: "Father of all, help us to hear your word and to act with courage."

"Open your mouth on behalf of the mute, and for the rights of the destitute; open your mouth, judge justly, defend the needy and the poor!" Proverbs 31:8-9

Happy New Year!

To kick off the new year we will be doing a drawing for all the students who submit an image of their Doodle Prayers. You still have time! The next time you pray, take the time to ask God for a word or phrase of encouragement. Use the techniques taught to you by Ann Robertson to pray and doodle. Then, take a picture and send the image to sheilap@rescathroch.org for your name to be entered in the LIVE drawing held on Wednesday, January 13th during our online Faith Formation class.
